“Citizens Bank is proud to continue a long-time partnership with our schools as we recognize the importance students play in the future of our communities,” commented Derbyshire. “In addition to an annual financial contribution, we operate a weekly bank-at-school program in our Randolph County partner schools and have staff members who serve on Local School Improvement Councils, teach financial education classes, serve as Social Studies Fair judges, and participate in other initiatives. Students from our partner schools often visit the bank on field trips, and our partners know they can always count on Citizens as a resource to enrich their education programs.”

Citizens Bank also serves as a partner-in-education with schools in Tucker and Pocahontas Counties including Tucker Valley Elementary/Middle School and Pocahontas County High School.
